The image features a photograph of three people climbing a tree, silhouetted against a bright, hazy sunset sky. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a warm, golden glow. The people are positioned on different branches, with one person at the top right, another in the middle, and a third on the left. The tree's branches are dark and intricate, with some fern-like leaves visible at the bottom. The overall mood is one of quiet determination and human connection.

du musst geben, was du bist"*
